

SUPPORT THE BBC STRIKE!

National Union of Journalists members at BBC Local are striking over cuts to local radio.

Why are we striking?

NUJ members at BBC Local working in radio, TV and online are taking part in a second strike opposing proposed cuts to local services. In local radio it will mean output after 2pm weekdays and at weekends will now be shared and cuts will mean just 48 hours of guaranteed local programming on top of sports coverage every week. BBC Local radio provides a vital service of news, information, and companionship for its communities and members are striking to protect it.

Striking is the last resort

The NUJ has held negotiations with the BBC, attempting to solve the dispute. Members went on strike in March and are doing so again, this time for 48 hours to take a stand to save local news services. We want the BBC to engage with the NUJ and put forward a fair proposal. The NUJ balloted 1000 members as part of the dispute and 83% voted in favour of strike action.

How you can support our strike

- Tweet a message of solidarity using #NUJBBCStrike and #KEEPBBCLocalRadioLocal. Tag @nujofficial or email campaigns@nuj.org.uk and we'll share your posts.
- Find out more about reasons for the strike and visit our pickets on strike days. www.nuj.org.uk/bbcstrike for details.

#NUJBBCStrike
#KEEPBBCLocalRadioLocal
www.nuj.org.uk/join

SUPPORT THE BBC STRIKE!

National Union of Journalists members at BBC Local are striking over cuts to local radio.

Why are we striking?

NUJ members at BBC Local working in radio, TV and online are taking part in a second strike opposing proposed cuts to local services. In local radio it will mean output after 2pm weekdays and at weekends will now be shared and cuts will mean just 48 hours of guaranteed local programming on top of sports coverage every week. BBC Local radio provides a vital service of news, information, and companionship for its communities and members are striking to protect it

Striking is the last resort

The NUJ has held negotiations with the BBC, attempting to solve the dispute. Members went on strike in March and are doing so again, this time for 48 hours to take a stand to save local news services. We want the BBC to engage with the NUJ and put forward a fair proposal. The NUJ balloted 1000 members as part of the dispute and 83% voted in favour of strike action.

How you can support our strike

- Tweet a message of solidarity using #NUJBBCStrike and #KEEPBBCLocalRadioLocal. Tag @nujofficial or email campaigns@nuj.org.uk and we'll share your posts.
- Find out more about reasons for the strike and visit our pickets on strike days. www.nuj.org.uk/bbcstrike for details.

#NUJBBCStrike
#KEEPBBCLocalRadioLocal
www.nuj.org.uk/join

