“DM 2018 backed a call from branches - supported by the NEC - for a wide-ranging review.

DM believes that the past year has demonstrated that existing democratic structures – which DM has never voted to jettison – can be improved and approached in a more accessible, cost-effective, digital format. Such moves can help to cut costs, negate unnecessary travel for participants and take up less time for those involved, potentially creating opportunities for greater participation and activism in union structures.

DM notes that there are positive and negative lessons to be drawn from the experience of operating under Covid-19 restrictions.

DM therefore instructs the NEC to carry out a review of how chapels, branches and councils have operated under Covid-19 restrictions and to prepare a report which will be disseminated to all members, branches and councils.”
